QUEENSTOWN NEWS

Mrs. Trainor's Calgary band will furnish the music in the Mile Hall the night of the famous picnic, July 8.

All grain that escaped the evil effects of the late spring rains, and there are some splendid-looking fields.

At the last U.F.A. and U.P.W.A. meetings delegates were elected to attend the big river political convention in Calgary, July 15th.

Miss Jessie Thum and Mr. Clarence (married) were married last week at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. J. H. Brown officiated at the ceremony. The young people went to Oregon to spend their honeymoon, where the parents of the groom reside.

Our old friend Austin Brown is again in the old stand on the river along the spring. Austin is no longer a widower. While across the river he became engaged to a charming young English widow. The lady came to Canada a few weeks ago and was married to Austin in Calgary. As the new Mrs. Brown appears to have many good ideas on farming and stock raising, especially in the sheep line, we expect to see big developments on the slope.

While the cattle dipping may be necessary, it has not met with any great approval by the farmers. To say the least, it causes great inconvenience to the farmer with a couple of cows to have to stop his work and drive these several miles and in most cases a lay around and wait all day, then go through the same operation again in ten days. In fact, the air around the dip was so laden with sulphur and brimstone that it was almost enough to dip the cattle in it.

Newspapers and Selling Opportunities

In these days of keen competition among dealers and salesmen, it is imperative that every channel likely to lead to a sales opportunity should be carefully sought and explored by those engaged in the business, and in studying this recently we have speculated as to whether dealers fully realize the use which the daily, weekly and trade papers should prove to them apart from the advertising column.

How many prospects does the average dealer line up when perusing the papers in the morning? Very few, we venture to say, though we do not for the moment intend to intimate that this is the result of lack of enthusiasm on the part of the dealer. If anything, it is simply the result of not keeping one's eyes and ears continually alert for stimulating suggestions which are continually on hand for those who seek them.

The daily news studied with the object of discovering sales possibilities will almost invariably yield some clue to a potential prospect, if the reader steadily keeps his point in view.

For example, here is a brief notice stating that real estate firm is about to open up a new sub-division. This means the employment of salesmen, and salesmen in these days need cars, and for the purpose there is no better car on the market than the Ford, so our wide-awake dealer will immediately list the real estate firm as live prospects and get on their trail.

Again, here is a paragraph stating that a new factory is about to be built in the district. It is a clench they will need transportation, so the dealer promptly lists them down as good prospects for Ford trucks.

Thus it will be seen that what were formerly just news or less interesting news items will on examination be found to contain excellent sales possibilities.

Take a freight embargo. Can any manufacturer or retailer use Ford trucks to overcome his difficulties? Shortage of power—how about Ford generators to make power? Little news leads to be constructed—another opportunity for tractor sales. Promotions, new appointments, proposed presentation, etc.—why not a Ford car sale?

The illustrations we have given are more or less the mere routine activities of your town, but the dealer who uses the initiative when looking over the papers will find a fertile field which can be used to great advantage and with little trouble.

It will be quite impossible in future for The Call to accept changes for sale after Monday noon of each week in any way. Remember you would not think it fair to miss the south mail by five days because another advertiser was late sending in a copy. Would you?

Imperial Polarine holds its body, maintains compression—keeps the motor running smoothly and quietly. The Imperial Chart of Recommendations shows the grade recommended for your car. Ask to see it when you stop for oil.

Imperial Polarine is sold by good dealers everywhere in sealed one-gallon and four-gallon cans, half-barrels and barrels, also in 121-gallon steel kegs, the handy size for the home garage. Buy the larger sizes to save money.

The Cutworm

BY JOHN GLAMBECK
Among the various prairie, human or otherwise, who feed on the farmer's crop, the cutworm has come very much to the front, and the damage done this year to some parts of Southern Alberta will amount perhaps to millions of dollars. We speak a lot of money and time trying to poison the much abused gopher, and not so much compared with the cutworm he is a pest. A well organized army of cutworms will do more damage in two weeks than the gopher in ten years. If the gopher we have an open enemy. We can see him in broad daylight and if we hang around his hole long enough we can otherwise exterminate him by poison bullets. But the cutworm is a silent, sneaking individual, who works in the dark, below ground, and he comes out when you are least looking for him. There may be a few hundreds, thousands or millions in your field. You never know, and you are practically powerless to combat him. The cutworm is practically new to this district. It is true that for several years past he has appeared west of Snake Lake and south of there, but only on small patches. Last year we met him for the first time, and then only on a few high spots. But this year he came early and stayed with us, and we are apt to remember him a long time. There are very few farmers in Quenston, Milk and Majorville who have not lost heavy this year by having their crops eaten up by cutworms. It runs the size of a worm from a few inches to a whole section. I lost 200 acres myself in less than two weeks and a man in Madocville claims he lost 250 acres in four days. That the quickest case I have heard of is where one man had a fine crop of stubble, Monday morning went to town and when he returned Tuesday afternoon every bit of crop had disappeared. South of Quenston several farmers lost every acre they had in crop. Not only do the worms work rapidly, but they do their work well, taking every bit of weeds along with the grain, leaving only black brush and rose bushes. While the worms chrysothrips their attacks on grain put in on stubble, fall plowing and summer fallowed land is by no means safe, and I have seen every high spot eaten bare in a summer fallowed field. The worms will seek in from the outside stubble fields and when once started, start plowing and summer fallow look all the same to them.

Now then, it is no use shutting our eyes to the fact that we are up against a rather serious problem. We have to beat the cutworm. Know there are standing armies on how to kill the cutworm by poison put in bins, etc., but when every high spot in your field is invaded at the same time you would need a lightning express to keep ahead of the worms and perhaps they would not eat your poison after all. One of my neighbors caught a worm and gave him a dose of Rowley's liniment and several other poisonous doses, but the worms only took on flesh after such application and he finally had to be disgusted with a sludge hammer. But this method is too slow. I have noticed that in certain places where the soil has been panned by wheel marks the worms leave the grain, but this is by no means universal. Now the cutworm theory is this. The cutworm mounds lay their eggs in August on thorny land, preferable on stubble land. If the eggs are not disturbed an army of young worms sails forth the following spring and devours every green thing in sight. They work until about the middle of June or later, then, some claim, they turn into moths; others that they lay eggs and from these eggs come the moths—spray the worms directly about that time. The safest way, they would be just to put grain in on stubble. Purchase in the long run is the best as far as feed is concerned. I have noted half the land each year, but some people claim that all this everlasting summer fallowing takes all the life out of the land and that soil left in the result. You may find your stubble in the fall and kill some of the eggs or you may fall plow. Some years, like this year, fall plow is all right; other years, such as the last year, when the soil was so worthless, and last year's crops put in on stubble were as good as that put in on summer fallowed land. The worms are, and will grow, clean cultivation is no doubt the best thing, the man who does the right thing in the year and combat and defeat all the various enemies looking for him is a wise guy indeed.

CURRENT COMMENT

ON MATTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST TO DWELLERS IN THE PRAIRIE PROVINCES OF CANADAA SERIES OF ARTICLES DEALING WITH VARIOUS WESTERN QUESTIONS

SMALL FRUITS IN THE WEST

There is no reason why small fruits in Western Canada should not have as much success on this hill of fare every day during the season.

Currents, raspberries, gooseberries and strawberries all do exceedingly well in the prairie country when properly cultivated. It is possible to have a fine strawberry in Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba as in British Columbia. Of course they require a good deal more careful attention.

It is a matter of astonishment that more attention is not given to the cultivation of these fruits. One has only to see how well wild raspberries flourish in some of the ravines in the Qu'Appelle Valley to realise what can be done in this respect by careful cultivation.

ANOTHER EMPIRE BUILDER

A few weeks ago the earthly remains of Leander Starr Jameson were laid to rest in that matchless mausoleum of the great dead, the Motopopo in the Matopopo. Jameson lies beside his great friend and fellow worker, Cecil Rhodes, who, like him, chose that sepulchre.

Dr. Jim., as he was called by some of those Scotchmen who have contributed so much to the development and extension of the British Empire. He was an Edinburgh boy but studied medicine at the University College in London. He early achieved success as a surgeon in London but his health broke down from overwork and he came to South Africa.

He settled in practice at Kimberley where he attained a great reputation as a medical man. It was at that time he met Cecil Rhodes and formed the friendship which lasted until the death of that Empire builder. At that time Lobengula, the Matabele chief, was a great potentate. Rhodes desired to obtain certain concessions from him, which he refused. Suffering from some sickness or other he had consulted "Dr. Jim.", who had afforded him great relief. The native potentate put more faith in this Scottish physician than he did in all the government officials put together.

Cecil Rhodes induced Jameson at that time to abandon his practice and unite his fortunes with him. Dr. Jameson was enabled to induce Lobengula to grant the concessions which resulted in the formation of the British-South Africa Company and when the company proceeded to open up Mashona land, Jameson joined the pioneer expedition of 1890.

In 1895 the operations of Rhodes and his associates were considerably hampered by the hostility of Kruger and the Boers. British subjects were being treated with great injustice in the Transvaal—they were paying almost the total taxes of the country and were practically disfranchised.

The British and American interests in Johannesburg were being menaced and the subjects of these countries made up their minds to endeavor to obtain control of the country. Accordingly, on the last day of the year of 1895 the world was startled to learn that Dr. Jameson at the head of 600 men had made an unprovoked invasion of the Transvaal in the name of a constitutional uprising in Johannesburg. They were surrounded by a vastly superior force of Boers under General Joubert and forced to surrender.

Dr. Jameson has been adversely criticized for this raid but there is no doubt that in making it he was actuated not only by a desire to assist the policy of the company which he represented, but in the interests of freedom.

He was one of the founders of the will of Cecil Rhodes, and later was Prime Minister of Cape Colony.

He was the idol of South Africa and his name in that country has always been a synonym for the cause of the people of the men whose Imperial will in South Africa won fame for themselves and the Empire.

INTOLERABLE CONDITIONS IN IRELAND

The situation in Ireland appears to be going from bad to worse.

Last week saw fighting in the streets of Londonderry, which has given the world some suggestion of what may be expected when the two strong elements in Ireland get at grips with each other. The forces of the Nationalists and Unionists have been virtually waging civil war in the streets of the Ulster city. To the outside the situation seems incredible and there appear to be a fatality about the Irish situation. The conditions are almost unbelievable. There may, however, be matters of policy which we in Canada do not understand, but it is an extraordinary condition when rival sections of the populace should be allowed to get at each other throat to throat, disrupt the peace of the country and engage in armed warfare, when there are plenty of military available. Is it that the government in London is afraid to offend radical or religious prejudice; or is it that they are simply unable to handle the situation?

People of the United Kingdom and the British Empire are not expected to submit to this state of affairs tamely for a much longer period.

The strange thing about the whole question is that almost every Irishman has a different explanation for it. The Unionist tells you that the Nationalists are too tenderly handled, and the Nationalists themselves will roll against the oppression and tyranny of England. It is thought that when the war was over that the British government, when given a reasonable time, would settle the Irish question. It is a great relief further from being settled now when the war has been signed.

The condition is intolerable and something must be done to relieve it.

FARM VALUES

Farm values are constantly rising in Western Canada. This is particularly true of the great grain growing country of Central Saskatchewan. Land that will produce crop after crop of the same cereal for a quarter of a century with undiminished yields is entitled to be valuable; and there is no question but that it will advance in price.

Wheat, however, is not the only thing we can grow. Experiments have now been made which show that cranberry crops, and the cultivation of sunflowers will undoubtedly achieve

Whitewood's Disappointment

The story of the evolution of the judiciary of Saskatchewan deserves, and indeed requires, a chapter of its own. Suffice it to say that in 1876 that judiciary was established by the appointment of Mr. Matthew Ryan and Lt.-Col. Hugh Richardson as assistant magistrates in and for the Northwest Territories. They were ex-officio members of the first North West Council under Lieut. Governor Laird—in fact they were the Council when Lieut. J. F. McLeod, Commissioner of the North West Mounted Police, and appointed member is added to their number. The amended and consolidated North West Territories Act of 1875, section 62, laid it down that "each stipendiary magistrate shall have jurisdiction and may exercise within the North West Territories the magisterial, judicial and other functions appertaining to any justice of the peace or any two justices of the peace, under any laws or ordinances which may be in force in the North West Territories," but the next section enacted that "each stipendiary magistrate shall preside in the courts in the North West Territories as shall from time to time be assigned him by the Lieutenant Governor," and in previous sections (58 and 59) it was enacted that "the Lieutenant Governor and Council or Assembly as the case may be, may by order in writing subject to the provisions of this Act (N.W. Terr. Act) from time to time or on any part of the said Territories or any portion thereof, divide the same into judicial districts."

All the court of Queen's Bench the Territory had in Manitoba. The Act provided that any Manitoba judge could try certain cases with a stipendiary magistrate sitting with him, or a justice of the case might be in 1876, the stipendiaries are found exercising practically the functions of common law judges for in 1886 Mr. Justice Rouleau tried Garnett, the stage robber, with the judge, Dr. Dodd of Regina sitting with him as an associate justice of the peace, and the sentence of the court was fourteen years' penal servitude. Legislation was passed in 1889 by the Parliament of Canada under which in 1887 the Lieutenant Governor in Council proclaimed five judicial districts each under a Supreme Court judge. Stipendiary magistrates and all lawyers of ten years' standing were eligible as Supreme Court judges. Stipendiary Magistrate Ryan had resigned and his place had been filled by Mr. Rouleau, Col. Richardson, Mr. Rouleau and Colonel J. F. McLeod were elevated to the bench, and two eastern lawyers were added to make up the requisite five. These were Mr. Wetmore and Mr. McGuire. The judicial districts, with their respective judges were as follows:

East Assiniboia—Mr. Justice Wetmore.
West Assiniboia—Mr. Justice Richardson.
North Alberta—Mr. Justice Rouleau.
South Alberta—Mr. Justice McLeod.
Saskatchewan—Mr. Justice McGuire.

The First Sitting of the Supreme Court in East Assiniboia commenced his official career in April, 1887, when he became a guest in Dan Hunter's Woodbine Hotel (which hotel has been removed in connection with the present session this summer, to make room for a soldiers' memorial). At the time there was a clerk, Mr. Whitewood who made notes and he announced in a Regina newspaper "His Honor Judge Wetmore has established himself here, and his agreeable face and manner have won golden opinions abroad." This was an auspicious start.

A Belated Bar

His Lordship held the first sitting of the Supreme Court in Whitewood on Monday, the 16th of May, when there was a sharp on time Judge Wetmore and Clerk Neff were in their places, but the members of the bar still lingered at the Whitewood hotel, puffing their fragrant Havana and telling election yarns. The judge arose and in a few brief but pointed words expressed regret at the want of punctuality on the part of the bar, announced the opening of the court, and then, following in the future if cases were not ready and adjourned the court till two o'clock in the afternoon.

Crestfallen Lawyers

About five minutes after the court adjourned, the lawyers came strolling in and discovering the state of affairs felt like crawling into their purple bags. They were not to be in court, but it is usually a cold day when lawyers get left. The scribble went on to add: "It is not surprising that the action of the judge has raised his Honor in the estimation of the bar and the public. Probably his Lordship took the bench and won for him many words of praise from those present."

Mr. William White Welcomes the Judge

At two o'clock sharp the court opened and this time the lawyers were more than on time. They had been in their places fully half an hour before the judge took his seat. The lawyers present were William White, Moosomin; Mr. F. F. Forbes, Moosomin; and Mr. Scott, Q.C. of Regina. Mr. William White welcomed the judge and congratulated him on his elevation to the bench as judge of that judicial district, which he claimed, with all due deference to his friend, Mr. Scott, Q.C. from the west, was the most populous and the most important judicial district in the Northwest Territories. Although it had not been their good fortune to know his Lordship personally for any length of time yet his Lordship's record in public life was before them, and he had just removed that of New Brunswick—and as one of the leaders of the bar in that province was before them, and he (Mr. White) must say that the Northwest Territories was to be congratulated on securing one so eminently qualified to discharge the arduous and important duties devolving upon one occupying so high a position. He hoped and had no doubt that the cordial relations already existing between bench and bar might continue as cordial as at present and trusted an important agricultural position throughout Western Canada and add considerably to land values. It will also give an impetus to the raising of stock.

It is impossible to state with any degree of certainty what the price of wheat will be this fall, but there is no doubt it will reach the highest point on record. When these facts are taken into consideration, it is no wonder that farm lands are increasing in price, and that they will continue to do so unless untoward circumstances intervene.

Where Court Was Held

The points at which Judge Wetmore held sittings were Yorkton and Salsco in the north; Moosomin, Whitewood, Grenfell and Wolsley in the center (on the C.P.R.) Cammington Manor, Camdull, Estevan, and for some time Oxbow, in the south. Court houses were subsequently built at Wolsley and Camdull, as well as at Wolsley.

Judge Wetmore Replies

The judge expressed his thanks for the kind words of Mr. White on behalf of the bar and for the complimentary references to the position he had occupied in the past of New Brunswick, with which he had been connected for fifty years. He felt the honor of being appointed as judge over what must be the most important judicial district in the north west as Mr. White had said so—he was much obliged for the confidence expressed in him and trusted that his relations with the bar would be always of the most friendly character.

The First Case—A J. Charged With Larceny

The first criminal case was tried by Judge Wetmore was rather a "stale" case, called for by the accused was a justice of the peace. Samuel Wilson was charged with the larceny of two ten dollar bills from the pocket of Mr. R. F. Forbes for the prosecution. Mr. R. F. Forbes defended. A number of witnesses were called for the prosecution. At the conclusion of their evidence, Mr. Forbes for the prisoner, moved his discharge on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence of the identification of the bills. His Honor held that the point was well taken.

Mr. D. L. McLeod, who was charged. The only other business was a motion for costs in a matter which had been appealed to sit on the grounds of no jurisdiction, and no order was made.

This was the last business. It will be noted that Mr. Forbes who was afterwards a judge at Prince Albert) was in both matters and was victorious in each.

How Whitewood Missed Being the Judicial Center

The geographical position of Whitewood, in the centre of the inhabited area of East Assiniboia, naturally marked it out as the headquarters of the law. The judge, and so it was originally intended to be. We have seen how Judge Wetmore first came to Whitewood.

Sidelights on Events of Everyday Life

A NEIGHBOR AT THE MOVIES.—INTERPRETATION OF THE SILENT DRAMA.—A BABY AT THE SHOW.

There are few people who have not, at some time or other, suffered the annoyance of sitting beside a person at a concert or play, who insists on reading the program, humming with the music, or explaining the act. The said person is a regular attendant at the movies. In a loud whisper she (it is usually a woman) reads to you the explanatory paragraphs, and tells you the exact meaning of each scene, apparently thinking that everyone else in the audience is blind or illiterate. Usually, she commences to read the paragraph several seconds after you, yourself, have gained the drift, and she is obliged to your misery, and chagrin; and usually, she is the very last one upon whom a joke slowly and painfully dawns, so that after you have got the drift, and are laughing and over your own amusement, and are, maybe, plunged into the depths of pathos once more, a delightful chuckle comes from your interesting neighbor who proceeds immediately to explain the joke with elaborate and careful detail to the unfortunate person who accompanies her.

The other night, after a hot and trying day, we thought a trip to the movies would do good, so forgetting our own amusement, we marched gladly off prepared to throw ourselves whole souled into the tragic and many sorrowful, always expect, usual story, as we lay in our favorite picture theatre. It was a pretty good thing, in our opinion, that the heroine, as becomes well behaved heroine, was brought safely through many varied vicissitudes, finally marrying what seemed to be the right man, although to our minds, in this case, the villain got rather an unfair deal, but after we suppose, what villain should get. The poor fellow, to make a long story short, heard the girl singing in a low cabaret; rescue her from her fate, and unavailingly steals the money to educate her, which proves to be a failure, and she is unknown to the fair victim, he is caught and languishes in jail for five years, while in the meantime she is suffering from "leaves" reads of this in the newspapers, and breaks his prison bars to go to the woman for whom he has risked so much and whom he loves, only to find that she hates him and is almost engaged to a man of title. Just at the crucial moment, when the much abused heroine has self sacrificially decided to renounce the title and marry the villain, the police arrive and try to arrest him, but he expeditiously finishes himself by falling off a five story building, and there is a wonderful ending of reconciliation between the heroine and the hero, and prospective bliss for evermore.

We would have enjoyed this unique romance (?) but for our right hand neighbor who carefully every word that appeared, religiously explained each joke and laughed quite often in the wrong place. But what was worse she had dragged with her a poor, unfortunate infant of about eleven months whom she conveyed to sit in the stuffy atmosphere on a warm June evening. The child was grubby and very, very sleepy. Poor little chap! I heard her sobbing the woman who was with her, in accents of pride, "No, he hasn't slept a wink all day!" It was then nine o'clock, the evening. He would have been a dear little fellow if he had been cared for well, intelligent, but he was tired, restless and rolling about. Once he lay with his head right under his mother's chin, but the mother was too deeply interested in the misadventures of the heroine, and in the sorrows of a starving infant portrayed on the screen to pay any attention to her own squirming offspring who attached himself to our knees and cleverly hauled himself up the screen, and developed an affection for us, leaning over, grabbing our sleeve, a few minutes, emitting a lusty roar in disgust at his fate, with which we heartily sympathized. As an evidence that his mother remonstrated he was in her vicinity, she occasionally stuck a not too clean empty bottle somewhere in the folds of his mouth, but otherwise, she did not seem to be worried, and the child's manoeuvres certainly did not prevent her from still being anxious to act as interpreter in chief of the picture before us.

When we entered that picture house this young woman and her baby were seated there. When we left, she was still there, the poor infant's head at a neck-breaking angle, and she with a handkerchief at her eyes, sniffing audibly at some very affecting passage in the story she had been enjoying so much!

Surely women should not be permitted to drag young infants around to study places of amusement, the late evening hours. The loss of sleep and fresh air must undermine their nervous systems, weaken their resistance to disease and pull down the region of their physique. When we observe the ignorance and carelessness with which so many parents, children are surrounded, even in this age of hygiene and sanitation, at a time when they should be given hours and hours of rest in order to build up a future that is before them, we wonder there are not more hopeless imbeciles, and tremble for future generations.

And surely too, there should be some rule instituted in public amusement houses to ensure comfort to those who like to enjoy what is being portrayed without a series of annoying comments.

in a frightful condition, being cov-brings such opportunities?

Peterborough is the latest city in Ontario to join the number of single newspaper towns. Since the beginning of the great war, Bradford, St.
Thomas, Berlin, Niagara Falls, Brockville, Port William, Port Arthur and St. Catharines have all entered that category, and the tale is not yet completed. Nothing can be more certain than the increased cost of production, due to the rapid rise in price of newsprint, in labor scales and in the cost of almost every other article and service
a daily newspaper requires, will compel the abandonment of competition in the smaller towns. Nor this only, for with the substantial increase in second class postal rates provided in the federal budget and the further advance in newspaper heralded by the manufacturers, disaster looms ahead for those newspapers that do not face the situation squarely and by higher subscription or advertising rates, or both, provided the greater revenue necessary to meet the growing expenditure.—St. Thomas Time-Journal.
